Caruso's Fall Makes a Hit in Puccini's 'Girl'

By Spivester Rawling. HEN Dick Johnson's spur caught in the curtains before act of Puccint's "The Girl of the Goldon West," at the Metropolitan Opera House last night, and Caruso, who was added to David Belasco's sensational plot. The Sheriff and his depuperformance generally was worthy, although there were moments when it seemed that a freshening of the memories of Mr. Belasco's original vivid instructions by all concerned at a drastic rehearsal would be worth while. 'Then, too, Mr. Polacco, who conducted with praiseworthy understanding, sometimes yielded to excess of real. When the orchestra swamped Emmy Destinn and Caruso in their most strenuous efforts to be heard, as it did in the second act, there could be no doubt that it overreached itself.

Emmy Destina, too, was at her Then there was Amato's convincing Jack Rance, the Sheriff, and Dinh Cility's fine Sonora, and the rest of the great cast that included Reiss, and Didur, and de Segurola and Pini-Corsi, not forgetting Marie Mattfeld as the Sauaw. Few persons left the house before the end.

Salvatore Giordano, an Italian tenor and protege of Caruso, gave a recital last night at Asolian Hall, assisted by Miss Lola Oro Renard, soprano; Miss Anna Amato, pianist, and Al-berto Bimboni, accompanist and or-ganist. Mr. Giordano sang with feel-ing and was warmly applauded by a

A large and enthusiastic audience heard "The Mighty Trio," as the bills called it, at Carnegie Hall last night. The trio was composed of the distinguished artists, Eugene Ysaye, violinist; Leopold Godowsky, planist, and Jean Gerardy, 'cellist, and the result last night was more satisfactory than their first concert a month ago. The programme required the co-operation of the three in Beethoven's trio in C minor and in Schubert's in B flat. Ysaye and Gerardy played together in Saint-Saens's "Leopola Godowsky, planist, and the result last night was more satisfactory than their first concert a month ago.
